Blackjack

Two cards are dealt to each player and the dealer. The player's cards are dealt face up; one of the dealer's cards is also dealt face up and the other face down. In Single Deck blackjack the player's cards are dealt face down.

The object of the game is to draw cards to a total of 21 or closer to 21 than the dealer. The ten, jack, queen and king count ten points each; other cards count at face value - aces can count as one or eleven points.

An ace with any ten, jack, queen or king, is a "blackjack." It is paid at one and one-half times the amount wagered (6-5 on single deck), unless the dealer also has a blackjack; in which case it is a "stand-off" or "push" — neither the dealer or the player wins.

If you do not have a blackjack, you may indicate to the dealer to "hit" you. This means to give you another card.

- You may draw as many cards as you like (one at a time) to improve your hand, but if you go over 21, you have "busted" and, consequently, lose your wager. If you do not want a "hit" (you have drawn as many cards as you desire), then you may indicate to the dealer you would like to "stand."
- You may "double down" (double your original wager) to receive one card only on any two original cards dealt.
- You may "split" any two cards with the same face value by making a wager equal to the original wager. You may "double down" after "splitting".
- You may split cards up to three times, except aces, which can only be split once receiving one card only on each.

Blackjack Rules

1. Blackjack pays 3 to 2. Single Deck Blackjack pays 6 to 5.
2. Tie hands are considered a "push" — nobody wins.
3. Dealer hits soft 17.
4. Hand signals are used to indicate if a player wants to draw an additional card or stand.
5. Players may "double down" on any first two cards and after splits.
6. "Splitting" is permitted up to four hands, except aces, which can only be split once receiving one card only on each.
7. The House accepts no responsibility for chips or cash left on the gaming tables.
8. Table limits are posted on all games.
9. Decisions by the management are final on all games.
